1 Initial Ideas

Mirrors might have something to do with lasers. There has to be a definitive answer that comes out of solving this question-less puzzle so I figured that you connect lasers until they draw out some pattern. I noticed 2 mirrors were positioned in an odd way (stuck to a corner rather than being centered). Maybe this could be where it starts and ends.

2 Begin Solving

Shooting a laser from the bottom-right mirror and having it reflect off the mirrors yields the following:

Because there has to be a definitive answer, I felt as if the rest of this puzzle was a cipher. Using each "window", I looked to see if there were ciphers that could correspond to this pattern. I originally thought it resembled Elian Script but it did not. Upon further inspection (and some research) I realized that this corresponded to the semaphore alphabet.

If you continue this for the next 15 windows, it spells out Season's Greetings (with the misplaced mirror as the apostrophe (smart!))
